We are proud to center tribal sovereignty at such a pivotal moment. Recent cases like Castro-Huerta v. Oklahoma and Navajo Nation v. Arizona show that the U.S. Supreme Court may be willing to overturn hundreds of years of settled precedent in favor of states' rights and corporate interests. Even when tribes do prevail, cases like Haaland v. Brackeen hint at potential future challenges to tribal rights. This year's Symposium will bring together the country's leading legal scholars, Indigenous communities, and students to discuss the most salient questions facing Indian law and Indigenous rights today.
