

UCLA LAW REVIEW
CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS
PERSONAL STATEMENT

In up to 750 words, please respond to any or all of the following prompts. Please also combine your Personal Statement with your Comment so that they are contained in the same document. As with your Comment, your Personal Statement should be identified only by your Blind ID.

The Personal Statement functions to help our team understand your viewpoint and motivations as a writer. The writing style of the Personal Statement will not be evaluated.

1. The UCLA Law Review welcomes writing that stems from a variety of personal experiences, values, and worldviews that arise from differences of culture and circumstance. Such differences include, but are not limited to: race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, abilities/disabilities, age, religion, immigration status, geographic region, and national origin. If applicable, please discuss how your identity and life experiences have influenced your writing and/or your view of the role of legal academia.
2. The Law Review editing process involves several stages of editing, and you will be required to engage deeply with each stage of the process if your work is selected for publication. Please discuss whether you will be available to fully participate in the editing process, given your on and off campus responsibilities this year.
3. The UCLA Law Review is interested in learning more about how you decided on your Comment topic. Please discuss any relevant motivations or processes in selecting your Comment topic. If applicable, please discuss any support you received from any organizations or other relevant entities.
